petroleum was received at Rochester, N. Y. made from crude petroleum produced in Russia. The Collector of Customs at Rochester held that the refined article was subject to duty as a production of Russia, and assessed duty accordingly. An appeal was taken from the action of the collector to the Board of General Appraisers at New York. This board, on January 23, 1901, sustained the collector, holding that petroleum produced in Russia and imported into England, and there refined and thence sent to this country, was dutable at a ratequal to that imposed by Russia on petroleum imported into that country from the United States.

"No protest or objection, so far as the department knows, was received from any country against this decision, and the matter was not again brought to the attention of this government until March of this year. On that date, the department he'd that the invoices of products of crude petroleum must be accompanied by a United States consular certificate, showing the country where the petroleum was produced. In the absence of this certificate, the liquidation was to be suspended, and pending further information the rate of duties must be estimated at the highest rate levied by any country on such petroleum. Further than this, the department has never taken any action whatever on the subject of petroleum."

Unon this statement of facts, the officials are at a great loss to know how Russia can feel aggreeved at the government's action and inaugurate a system of discriminating duties against products of the United States in consequence. It is hoped that Secretary Hay will be able to present the facts so that Russia will rescind her action, and will show that she is not seeking to be unjust to this country on tariff matters.

The great difficulty which is now to be contended with in Cuba is that relating to commercial affairs, and the necessity of better markets for Cuban products without the tariff restrictions in the United States. Nothing can be done, however, until the Cuban government is formed, when a reciprocity arrangement may be made, but this will require ratification by the Senate.

An order of Gen. Wood relating to debts and mortgages, it is understood, will tide over the difficulties which were feared a short time ago.

CHICAGO LABOR DISPUTES. OFFICIAL TESTIMONY OUT.

(BY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS-A.M.)
WASHINGTON, June 21.—The Industrial Commission has issued the eighth volume of its results on testi-mony. This volume comprises 612 pages, and deals exclusively with the labor disputes in Chicago in 1900. The commission makes no reco but prints a summary of the testi-mony, in the course of which it says: "It was claimed also by reveral of the witnesses, not only that policemen the witnesses, not only that policement themselves were prejudiced in favor of the strikers, but that the higher city authorities leaned the same way. They asserted that the police had their incase of absolute necessity, and several epicific instances were cited to show that this was the case. It was claimed that this attitude of the authorities, which showed itself also in the acions of the police justices and other inferior courts, was due to political influence, especially to the desire of the party in power to cater to the large vote of the laboring classes at the coming election.

"These witnesses held that strikes in Chicago have often been especially numerous, just before elections, and that both parties have been disposed to make political capital out of labor difficulties."

Even Bryan Himself is Said to Have Declared That Disruption is Preferable to Abandonment of "Principles" as He Understands Them.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.) WASHINGTON, June 21.-[Exclusive Dispatch.] The dawning of a new party n the West within a year of the nomnation of William J. Bryan at Kansas City is greeted by the Democratic poli-icians here with much less respect han a similar announcement would have been received a year ago, and although the "principles" embodied in the prospectus of the party were pretty nearly all advocated at Kansas City, it is manifest that they will not be treated with the consideration that was accorded them a year ago. Bryan's statement that he is not allied with the new party does not impress the Democrats as significant, and not nearly so important as Senator J. K. Jones's recent assertion that Bryan is not to be the candidate of the emocratic party in 1904. Some of the Democrats who attende the Kansas City convention recall tha Merriwether, who figures so prominently in the new party organization, was one of the men who insisted that Bryan should be permitted to dictate the platform and candidates to be nomitted. nated. The generally submissive spirit Democratic party, made up in considerable part of the various parties represented in the new Kansas City organization, easily gave control to men ition made by conservative Democrats who saw what the renomination of Bryan was tending to, and who real-ized that defeat might be followed by the disruption, which Bryan has, with n a month, suggested would be preferable to the abandonment of principles. Senator Jones has left Washington, but it is understood that he referred to the declarations of the third party as "fudge." Lesser Democrats, who no longer hesitate to declare that they have followed Bryan long enough defeat and have to have no more to do with his whimsicalities and his dreams of success, with Populistic theories for a platform, fear that he may hang onto nough of his personal popularity to secure another nomination, and to force conservative Democrats to nom-inate a man and make a platform that will command the confidence and the support of Democrats who have been "in the woods" for several years. (B) THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS-P.M.]

ALTURAS, June 21.—As a result of the investigation of the Modoe county grand jury into the Lookout lynching cases, three men are behind the bars of the Modoe County Jail. The grand jury completed its labors last Wednesday evening and immediately afterwards Sheriff Street started for Lookout, returning next day with Robert Leventon, J. W. Brown and Isom Eades. These three are all that have been brought here so far, and it is not known whether there were any more indictments brought in by the grand jury or not. The arrest of these men was a great surprise to them and their friends, and the residents of Lookout are looking with anxiety for who will be the next. The arrest has caused quite a shadow to fail over the town of Lookout, as these three men were considered to be among the best citizens of the place. The men will await trial without bail and every effort is being made by the prosecution. More arrests will probably follow in a few days. The authorities claim that Leventon, Eades and Brown are the leaders of the mob and that there were not more than twelve or fifteen men connected with the horrible crime. he investigation of the Modos county order of the Navy Department that hereafter no battleships shall pass through Hell Gate except under conditions of exceptional emergency, and the successful passage of this channel by the Massachusetts has attracted unusual attention in marine and naval circles here. Just before starting, Capt. Manney, in command of the Massachusetts, said: 3°I do not know what all this hullaballoo is about. I do not see that there is any danger. They talk about no battleship ever going through. The Maine went through. Of course, she was not a battleship of the first class. I do not think there is any danger. If I did, I would not attempt the passage."

No special pilot was taken by the Massachusetts. Capt. Beil, the veteran navy yard pilot, proffered his services, but Capt. Manney said: "I have been in these waters a great many times before. I never took a pilot yet, and I do not see why I shall now."

Capt. Bell also made little of the danger of taking the Massachusetts through Hell Gate. In his opinion it was not specially hasardous and required only careful work by the men at the steering apparatus. He added: "Why, there is a vessel three times as big as the Massachusetts which goes through Hell Gate twice every day. That is the Priscilla of the Fall River line. She comes in the morning and goes out in the afternoon."

Rear-Admiral Barker. the commander at the navy yard, denies that he has ever termed Capt. Manney's venture "foolhardy." He did say thig, however:

"Considering the risk of property, I would not take a vessel of such a class through so narrow a passage, especially when there is no need for it. I went through there on the Philadelphia myself, but they made a great time about it because they thought I did not have a pilot. I did have a pilot, though. Of course, if the battleship gets through, it is all right, but if anything happens the captain would be responsible for it."

"And," said Mr. Gaines, "you might add to this list the name of John Marshall Harlan of Kentucky, who, though appointed to the United States Supreme Court as a Republican, has enunciated fine old Democratic doctrines from the bench more than once. The war-is over, and the South is an integral part of the Union, and not an insular possession, or a Porto Rico, and besides, have not numerous ex-Confederates served on the bench of the Supreme Court and in other positions of the Federal judiciary by appointment of both Democratic and Republican Presidents; also, have not several ex-Confederates served in the Cabinets of both Republican and Democratic Presidents; Congress has been full of ex-Confederates for thirty years. Surely, if ex-Confederates can be trusted to make and interpret laws, they can be trusted to execute them. Therefore my voice from this time on shall be for a southern man for President."

The census is only for the purpose of learning the number of consumptives in the State as far as possible, and the revealing of other facts relating to the disease. Dr. Lewis said, in an interview: "I first thought of asking the various boards of health throughout the State to ascertain the number of tuberculosis persons in their respective districts, and to submit a report to me, but I have decided that I could better obtain the information that I desire, by sending a circular to every physician in this State. Of course, I do not expect to get answers from them all, but I am firmly of the opinion that the majority of them will do all in their power to ald me in this work, and to make the statistics to be recorded as reliable as possible."

This Section. In spite of the fact that the theft of a bicycle is now a felony, and that severe punishment has been meted out here, to those convicted of that crime, there has been greater activity by bicycle thieves during the past week than at any time since the new law was passed. During the present week not a day has passed but that at least three such thefts have been reported, and on two days seven wheels were reported lost by their owners. A number of these stolen wheels have been recovered, but about half of them have not been found.

The thefts are by no means confined to this city, for the police here are daily receiving descriptions of bicycles stolen in other cities throughout this section of the State. Such reports are always coming in, but the number has increased so much lately, that the detectives are inclined to the belief that the thefts are the work of an organized gang.

RESULTS PLEASE CHICAGO. IBY THE NEW ASSOCIATED PRESS-A.M.J CHICAGO, June 21.—The election of W. C. Brown to the vice-presidency and general managership of the Lake Bore and Michigan Southern Railroad caused no surprise in Chicago, but gave rise to the liveliest satisfaction in railway circles, in which Mr. Brown has long been recognized as an official of marked ability. The office of general manager of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad, which Mr. Brown has resigned will be filled by the promotion of F. A. Delano, present superintendent of motive power for the Burlington. This appointment, as well as that of J. F. Deems, assistant superintendent of motive power, to succeed Mr. Delano, was announced today by President Harris, as soon as the latter was advised of the action of the Lake Shore directors.

gratulations and best wishes in his new advancement."

W. C. Brown was born forty-eight years ago in New York, and in 1870 began working for the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, cording wood and serving as a section hand. He later learned telegraphy and worked as train dispatcher for the Illinois Central and the Rock Island systems until 1876, when he was appointed train dispatcher for the Jowa division of the Burlington. From that time his rise was rapid until in 1830 he was made superintendent of the Jowa lines. In 1836 he was chosen general manager of the online Burlington system, with headquarters in Chicago, which office he has held continually since.

OFFICERS GET "NEXT."

After the raid some time ago, most of the joints were closed by their owners, who intended to await the decision of the courts before taking any chances of conviction. The Chief gave his men strict orders to look out for games, and to report promptly. A day or two ago it was reported to the Chief that R. H. Dunn's place at the Arizona Club was doing business, and that strangers were taken in.

To secure evidence sufficient to convict the players and Dunn it was necessary for the police to send a man into the clubroom to be there when the raid was made, and be able to testify as to all that took place before the arrival of the officers. This was infficult, for Dunn had become very cattlous. Several times arrangements were made for a raid, but had to be abandoned, because it was impossible to get a man working for the police into the game. DUNN PUTS UP.

Dunn was furious, and when Detective Auble entered the room, he seized the officer and tried to throw him under a table. He was soon subdued. He put up 150 cash bail for himself and each of the others. Thousands of poker chips and nearly a gross of decks of cards were seized, and with all the movable furniture, were taken to the Police Station as evidence. Two signs taken from the walls will also be used. One reads: "Men who are barred will stay out of this reom." The other bears the leaend which any poker player can understand: "Only one showdown allowed."

 SANTA ANA'S BIG SLEEPER.

Dozed About Three Weeks and Won't Waken. Odd Case

IBY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES. SANTA ANA, June 21.-[Exclusive Dispatch.] The case of a man who has slept almost continuously for three weeks and gives no indication of awakening very soon, is inter esting local physicians. He is John S. Little, who came here recently from Hiawatha

The only interruptions of the man's long siesta have been when medical attendants demanded that he be awakened, and at those times he seemed perfectly rational. He complains, however, that he is not allowed to sleep, and objects to being disturbed.

The only courishment given the patient is toast and milk, and this he awallows in sleep when it has been placed in his mouth by the attendant. His weight has fallen off only about ten pounds on this meager diet, and Little is still big. In ordinary health his weight is over 250 pounds,

STRIKE OF ORO GRANDE NOT FULLY APPRECIATED.

New Smelter for El Paso is Almos Assured-Gold Strike in La Luz Canyon Causes Great Excitement in That Part of New Mexico.

The boom in the Wickenburg dis-trict of Arizona is growing, and prom-ises before very long to rival any previous excitement in that part of the Territory. Several local prospectors have just arrived on the scene and send word to friends in this city that it is a "hummer."

In the Oro Grande the finest kind of mixed ore is found at a depth less than 200 feet.

"Few people realize the magnitude of the strike made in this mine," writes a local prospector. "From reports it has been variously estimated by mining experts as being worth from $200,000 to $500,000. The rock runs on an average of $60 to the ton."

There are other properties there that are almost as rich, and hundreds of undeveloped claims have been staked out since the rush began.

As soon as the 200-foot level has been reached in the Oro Grande property an eighty-stamp mill is to be installed. When that is done work is to be pushed to the limit.

ported to have made some important purchases of mines lately, some of them being in the neighborhood of El Paso.

Several weeks ago this company purchased the Hanover group near Silver City, and will work the mines extensively. These mines are copper and iron and contain the most valuable properties for smelting. Since the purchase the company has been arranging for the erection of a large smelter in El Paso. In that part of the country there are numerous producing properties, and the impression is that a new smelter would be a paying proposition.

PICKED FROM THE DUMP. PICKED FROM THE DUMP.

The discovery of gold-bearing ore in La Luz Cañon that runs $200 to the ton in value has created a mining fever in that part of New Mexico.

It is reported that the Lead Queen has opened a large body of rich ore. This property is near San Andreas.

Development work on the White Horse group, situated in the Walker district of Arizona, is progressing very satisfactorily. The working shaft is now down 100 feet, and is now in a good ore. The company which is backed by much capital will carry on the extensive work begun.

Miss Day and Mrs. Lang both showed cleverness in an encounter with the foils. The audience would have never known, had it not been announced, that Miss Day won.

"Farmer" Anderson and "Bootblack" Beebe gave an entertaining show of fast and comic tumbling, in which the former showed himself quite a contortionist.

The director and seven of his understudies took turns frightening the spectators with thrilling feats on the horisontal bar, in which some of the boys took tumbles that shook the building. McCormick, the whistler, won loud applause by clever imitations of the feathered creatures of the barnyard and forest. His rendition of the chirp of the chick and the cenary's song were expecially true to life. Miss Rea Farks and Miss Beatrice M. Snow each gave recitations acceptably, and Mr. Martin was compelled to answer an encore to a vocal solo.

The evening closed with some very good fancy tumbling by Sheckles is fast and strong, and the trio did some tricks that would do credit to professionals.

wining merited applause by their carnest and intelligent efforts.

The plot of the drama is laid in Spain during the Mohametan war, and deals principally with a young nobleman's losing struggle to stand for his father, country and religion against evil counsels.

Spurred on by hope of vengeance on a cuemy, young Don Alonzo becomes Spurred on by hope of vengeance on an enemy, young Don Alonzo becomes a traitor, for which his father pronounces upon him a terrible malediction and under which he loses his reason. The father and his vassals are taken prisoners by the Turks, but even under pain of death, and unsed by his son, the old man refuses to renounce his Christianity. He finally escapes and returns to the Christian camp, where he finds Don Alonzo. The erring son is restored, and is afterward killed in battle with his old allies, the bighametans.

killed in battle with his old allies, the Mchametans.

Raymond Manion, as Don Alonzo and Eugene Conway, as Don Vasco, the father, did some excellent acting. As Pedro, a guileless peasant, William White earned many laughs, and the work of James Hayes and Edward Moriarity showed ability. The production in general was far superior to the average of amateurs, and showed the finish imparted by diligent study and plenty of rehearsing.

Detective Walter Auble is a member of the force noted for his domestic virtues. He does not drink nor use to-bacco, and he is reputed to be a model husband and father. where ladies were concerned, than he is now. One of the first duties he had to perform was to go to the old Colton House one night to untangle a dispute about a $20 coin which the landiady alleged had been stolen from her by one of the guests.

The landlady had two men and a woman corralled in a room when the officer arrived, and she said one of the trio certainly had her money. She requested the policeman to search them one by one. Auble said he had no right to do so, unless the suspects had no objections. They said they were willing to have the fullest ingestigation made, as they were innocent and had nothing to conceal.

BARKEEPS PREACH ETHICS OF BOXES.

"Thomas Bellino of the Oak asioon on New High street, just at the border given the matter deep and earnest attention in its ethical significance. Mr. Bellino apoke to The Times reported of the matter as it applies to the home and family circile.

At the time no one was in the saloon box, of which three sides are now open, but Mr. Bellino's remark was taken to have a deep re significance. The already untenanted state of the box as to the virtues of the police crusade.

"Suppose," said Mr. Bellino, preparing to draw a hypothetical case, "suppose that your wife was in the habit. This was comparatively an easy none, "Now," Mr. Bellino went on, "you wouldn't want to line her up at the bar.

OWNER OF BUSINESS BLOCKS AND

Was an Extensive Fruit Grower and Formerly a Wholesale Liquor Dealer. Lived Here Over a Quarter of John Kiefer, a retired capitalist and er resident of Los Angeles, his home, No. 163 Grand avenue, at the age of 68 years. The end came quite suddenly from heart disease. Mr. Klefer was a native of Englehardt Germany, and came here in 1875 from St. Paul. He was an extensive rower, and at one time was engaged in the wholesale-liquor business. He was the owner of the Jennette Block, at the corner of Los Angeles and Ar-cadia streets; the J. K. building on Spring street, the Bijou building on Los Angeles street and the new build-Los Angeles street and the new building now going up opposite the Springstreet school, as well as other properties in various parts of the city.

Surviving him are his widow, two sons, O. H. Kiefer, of Kiefer & Co., and Dr. H. A. Kiefer, and one daughter, Miss Oiga Kiefer. Peter P. Kiefer of No. 240 North Hope street is a brother. The deceased had a large circle of friends, especially among the German-Americans; was a Freemason, and was keenly interested in commercial affairs of the day.

The funeral will be held at the house at 2 o'clock p.m. Sunday, and there will be a large attendance of those who esteemed him so highly.

XPERT testimony for the defense in the burning issue of saloon boxes or no saloon boxes was heard yesterday by The Times.

Every question is recognized to have two sides, although one sometimes runs on a flat wheel. The front side of this has been expounded until the whitewarh is peeling off; the other has languished undiscovered.

Above all others, the barkeep is the one best able to know what goes on inside of a saloon box.

As a moral agent and a connoisseur of virtue he is as yet but a dilettante. If his début is made now with a natural diffidence, still his is a fervor unjaded.

'Thomas Belling of the Oak saloon.

Mr. Apeer's idea seems to be: "Make all you can out of a bad matter."

While Mr. Apeer was delivering this opinion, a voice came from the inner recesses of the establishment, potent with meaning and ringing with conviction. It said: "Dere aind no respectible women vat vawnts to coom to a saloon. If dey do, dey don't vawnt as boxes, dey cooms mit a cas."

One of the most convincing of the side doors was Herr Fred Hoppe, who runs a saloon on Sixth and Spring streets. Personally Mr. Hoppe is absolutely reckless of the consequences of the private-box movement.

"Close all de saloon of dey like. I don't care."

"That kind of women is bound to drink anyhow. Might as well be here as at their homes."

In order to have the matter explicitly clear, Mr. Apcer was asked this question: "What kind of women do you refer to?"

"What kind?" repeated Mr. Apcer. scornfully. "What kind of women do you suppose drink in saloons? Battle axes!"

The domestic side of the picture did not appeal to Mr. Apcer.

He discussed it, however, in it's economic sense.

"It tell you what it is," he said. "This is one of the principal sources of revenue of this city, and when the people who are now making such a holler have to pay taxes to make up for it, they will have something to holler about, and then you'il see."

"Appearance of the principal sources of revenue of this city, and when the people who are now making such a holler have to pay taxes to make up for it, they will have something to holler about, and then you'il see."

SOLDIER-VISITOR.

Surgeon-General G. M. Sternberg of the United States Army Spent Yesterday in Los Angeles. Brig.-Gen. G. M. Sternberg, Surgeon-General U.S.A., spent yesterday at the residence of his sister, Mrs. Ira Phelps, No. 1542 Ingraham street.

No. 1542 Ingraham street.

Gen. Sternberg is a sturdily-built man of medium height, with gray hair and mustache, and has the air of a business-like attorney, rather than that of a soldier. His gray sack traveling suit may contribute to giving one this impression. He is on his way to Manila on his first trip of inspection to the islands, and came directly through from Washington to Los Angeles without a stop. He remained during vester-out a stop. He remained during vesterfrom Washington to Los Angeles without a stop. He remained during yesterday with Mrs. Phelps, left last night for the north, and will sail on Tuesday on the Hamcock for Manila.

"There is no special occasion for my soing to Manila," said Gen. Sternberg, when seen by a Times reporter last evening, just prior to his departure.
"It is simply my first personal inspection of the troops at Manila. The sick rate among the troops is very saitsfactory, being only between 7 and 8 per cent., and all things considered, there never has been any room for complaint as to the health of our troops at Manila.

"I have for some time wished to make this trip, but the pressing condition of the business of my department would not admit of it sconer. I shall be gone about two months, and expect to enjoy the trip."

YOUNG WOMEN'S CONFERENCE.

Margaret E. Sangster has issued the following call for the annual young women's conference at Northfield, Manz.:
"As usual in the last ten years, a conference of young women will be held in Northfield from July 12 to 21, to which all young women are urg-ently and affectionately invited. The to which all young women are urgently and affectionately invited. The purpose of this gathering is for Christian fellowshop and to afford an opportunity to unite in prayer for a spiritual blessing upon ourselves as individuals and on our colleges, places of business and home life. College rtudents, young women engaged, in wage-earning and daughters living at home; young women in society, young women of all sorts and conditions, ard included in this invitation.

"Opportunity to study the Bible and to consider the methods of Christian effort and missionary progress, will be afforded under eminent speakers from home and abroad; and there will likewise be time for pleasant, social intercourse and recreation. Those who would grow in earnestness and consecration; those who are conscious of a desire for something more than they have hitherto known of the reality of the Christian life, will find great help and enduring power in this conference. We ask young women to come and spend ten beautiful days of summer in a beautiful place in united prayer and praise to Christ. We ask those who cannot come to remember the conference in their prayers; and we issue this call in His name. Who has voledged His presence and benediction wherever His disciples meet."

THE WATER CONTROVERSY.

The outcome of the recent attem to adjust the long-pending controversy between the city and the water company is not surprising to The Times. The result was inevitable. This is the movement to which The rineered in favor of State cession, and onsequently against the national igation movement. The outline of the proposed bill shows that our suggesion was well founded. Friends of the national irrigation movement should not be misled by any of these side ovements. In a speech delivered in the House of Representatives, during he last session, by Congressman New lands of Nevada, on the arid-land juestion, in referring to the idea of

State cession, he said:

"It has been suggested that the cession of the arid lands to the States would produce the same results, and would relieve the Federal government of a great work. My answer to this is that the government has no right to abdicate the great trust imposed upon it by the ownership of 600,000,000 acres of land, upon which the homes of unborn millions are to be made. It cannot afford to intrust these lands either to the ignorance, the improvidence, or afford to intrust these lands either to the ignorance, the improvidence, or the dishonesty of local legislatures. The experience of all the Western States has been that the grants of land made by the Federal government to the States for the purpose of education or local improvement have been maladministered and have resulted in the concentration of immense holdings of land in single ownership.

"This country has today 70,000,000 of peeple; within one hundred years it will have 300,000,000 people. The pressure for land will be great. Imagine the discontent and disturbance which will result from an improvident administration of these great areas easily capable of supporting 100,000,000 people."

In addition to this Mr. Newlands

An extract from the report is here given:

"For about three weeks following the arrival of the relief column at Peking, the condition in and about the city, and along the line of communication was bad. Looting of the city, uncontrolled foraging in the surrounding country and seizure by soldiers of everything a Chinaman might have, as vegetables, eggs, chickens, sheep, cattle, etc., which were being brought into the city or found on the farms; indiscriminate and general unprovoked shooting of Chinese in city, country and along the line of march and the river—all this did not tend, as was natural, to gain for the troops the confidence of the masses, with whom it is certain we have no quarrel, but were in need of their labor. It is safe to say that where one real Boxer has been killed since the capture of Peking, fifty harmiess coolies, or laborers on farms, including not a few women and children, have been slain. No doubt the Boxer element is largely mixed with the mass of population, and by slaying a lot, one or more Boxers might be taken in." In addition to this Mr. Newland went on to show that the physical conditions are such as to prevent ion, as the arid region must be considered as a unit, regardless of Stat lines. The plains to be watered may be in one State, the sources of the river which is to water them, and the only available sites for reservoirs, may

[The Times freely publishes the views of cor-respondents, without holding itself responsible for writers opinions. Be brief, write plainly; state clearly. The space of 25 words, on the average, is sufficient for the expression of an idea.]

A Library Site Worth Considering.

The Times has fully explained heretofore, the real object of this railroad venture is a magnincent system extending from San Diego, via Brummagem, Ga., and Jacksonville, Fla., to Santiago de Cuba. What a fine piece of alliteration that name will be, "The San Diego and Santiago (Hot) Air Line." It is almost worth building the road to see that painted on the sides of the cars. Whether this read would really begin at San Diego, or end at Santiago, we do not know. Possibly this is an entering wedge for a reund-the-world line, to be built-by Morgan and his associates, covering the ocean on trestles.

In any case, The Times hastens to extend its congratulations on this important forward move, and to assure them that, in spite of the sometimes not altogether complimentary remarks that have been made by the San Diegans about our "harbor swindle." we do not bear them any malice, but shall be pleased to see this new road.

A Library Site Worth Considering.

LOG ANGELES, June 21, 1901.—(To the Editor of The Times:) I believe as the for the proposed new Public Library can be obtained free of charge within one block of Central Park. I refer to the State Normal School grounds are extensive, and it is unlikely that the comparatively small space required for the library would ever be needed by the school. The library could be built at the south end of the grounds, fronting of Grand avenue, and would not interfere in any way with the outlook, usefulness or occupancy of the State's buildings. The consent of the Legislature is the only thing necessary to secure a free and reasonably well located site for our library. Unfortunately, it will be a year and a half become that, in spite of the sometimes not altogether complimentary remarks that have been made by the San Diegans about our "harbor swindle."

We do not bear them any malice, but shall be pleased to see this new road ourselves, and that the written pags is not enough to make us correctly familiar with the world, but that if we would know it as it is, we must see it with our own eyes.

"What do we care for Pittsburgh, the smoky city." we had said. "If the time we are to spend there had been given to Chicago, how much more enjoyable it would have been." We had been to Chicago and reveled in the grandeur and beauty of its parks, had been iffed to the top of its highest building, twenty-five stories high, where the busy lite of the city lay so far below us, and the blue waters of the great lake stretched out to the horizon's ine, sparkling in the surring life of the great metropolis, the constantly-shifting panorama or humanity, and now to go to the dust and smoke of Pittsburgh—no, we did not like it and wished that The Times had not planned any stop-over for us there. But later on we were breatning benedictions upon The Times, and were expressing our pleasure that it and net ourselves had prepared our litnerary—didn't your right ear burn, dear Times?—for we got a view of the real city—the city where the home life is filled by all the enchantments of nature. Away from the smoke and noise of the business scretch out be modern architecture, set in the midst of broad, park-like expanses. That is one of the charms of those homes—Nature is not excluded, but those home-dwellers 'hold communion with her visible forms." Tall trees encircied them, the green lawns stretch out lito wide expanses; flowers are taere, and beautiful fountains with climbing vines and bushes filled with blossoming fragrance and the air ripples with the melody of bird song. There is seen the ideal home life of the greet city. The architectural wealth of this section of Pittsburgh, lying along Fifth avenue and other aristocratic streets, is almost without limit. All the most elegant styles of modern architecture may be seen here. The houses are mostly built of stone and brick, and numberless ones among them are covered with the green, clinging toy, which adds col

The houses are mostly built of stone and brick, and numberless ones among them are covered with the green clinging lvy, which adds color and beauty to the general picture.

It is said that "corporations are without souls," but the action of the Pennsylvania Railway Company towards The Times' party disproved such statement most fully, for upon our arrival at Pittsburgh a troiley car was placed at our disposal and we were taken over the entire circuit of the traction line, a distance of twenty-five miles, from which we could view, not only the attractions, but the industries of the city—a city of $59,000 people, ali astir with the life of the twentieth

all astir with the life of the twentieth century

The public buildings are numerous and elegant. Among them is the public library, a massive and handsome building of brick, looking solid enough to stand for centuries. Structures devoted to educational purposes were numerous, and were imposing in design and finish. Pittsburgh is also a city of fine churches. It has, too, its handsome, weil-kept public parks, or which we visited but one—Highland Park, from the higher points of which a birdseye view of a large portion of the city is obtained. Some handsome monuments and statuary have of the city is obtained. Some hand-some monuments and statuary have been erected here, which appeal to the patriotism of the true American. How much of history is perpetuated in them. They are as voiceful as life, and the silent language which they breathe is more eloquent than words of the deeds of glory in our coun-try's past.

of the deeds of glory in our country's past.

An abundance of rain this season has made this section unusually beautiful. Vegetation is abundant. The forests and fields have put on their richest garments; all the wild bloom of the wayside has waked to life, and the State seems like one great garden from one end to the other. Forests and groves of trees are numerous, running atreams everywhere babble their summer songs, and we realize that Pennsylvania is one of the prosperous and powerful States of our grand Union. How the wide wheat fields stretch out and the apple orchards dot the broad expanses! The farm houses look like homes of comfort and the immense and the apple orchards dot the broad expanses: The farm houses look like homes of comfort and the immense barns speak of abundant plenty. The sleek cattle are numerous in the patures, and the plough is still turning up the rich soil. Invention is here, and we find the machine raking up the hay wagon without the help of the laborer's arm. It is a wonderful picture, and as we note the farmer as he superintends his workmen we can but realise the superiority of the American freeman over the stolid peasantry of the Old World, and the grandeur of this great country, all under one flag from sea to sea, the home of freedom and the hope of the world.

This award will be made, in the face of the fact that the contractors, in their bid for a continusnee of the work, demand $5000 more per year than they have been receiving during the last thirty-two months while sweeping the streets.

To the Board of Public Works, because of the fact that an eve competition has appeared in the field, and now have been learned, he wants the city to readvertise for offers.

The present contract, under which the streets, will expire July 1. The City Council advertised for bilds for a new contract some time ago, and last off the three offers, that of Franklin & Alexander was found to be the lowest. J. H. King, formerly Southern Pacific operator at San Fernando, but now at Santa Barbara, appeared in Judge Conrey's court yesterday to show cause; why he should not pay $30 a month alimony to Mrs. Clotilda King pending the trial of a divorce suit begun by her on the grounds of desertion and failure to provide. desertion and failure to provide "The only answer I can give, Judge,

This information was somewhat starding, until King carefully drew from an inside pocket a decree granted to him at Reno, Nev., a year ago last February, separating him from Mrs. King on the ground of desertion. The that his wife deserted him two months "Does Mrs. King know about this decree?" he was asked.

"I do not know," said he, "but I presume not, or she would not now be prosecuting this present action."

"In your suit of a year ago, did you get personal service of your summons on Mrs. King?"

"No, sir; publication only."
King says the woman has dragged him into court for money heretofore, but has not received a cent. Her attorneys, Messrs. Heater & Ladd, were greatly set back when King produced his decree and showed he had anticipated their client by many months, But they intend to fight the competency of the decree and try to prove that Mrs. King was sued without her knowledge.

He was charged with stealing a watch belonging to M. Cruz on April 15, which he sold for $2.

The defendant did not arouse himself long enough to go on the stand in his own behalf, and put on only one witness. That was Mrs. Louise Bitznau, landlady of the St. George Hotel, corner Alameda and Commerctal streets. Cruz was a roomer of hers; Romero robbed him while asleep.

Mrs. Bitznau was very fond of talking. She answered the questions put to her by her attorneys, and then volunteered a lot more. Once she did this and Judge Smith tolerated her. Then a few minutes later, just as Deputy District Attorney Willis was beginning his argument, she thought of something else she wanted to say, and, of course, proceeded to say it.

Rap, rap, rap, went the judge. "See here, woman, said he, sharply, "remember that you are in court, and that you must have some propriety here, even if you do not have any down at your house."

Mrs. Bitznau tilted her head high on stooped shoulders and went off on a high horse.

The jury was out about ten minutes and returned a verdict of guilty, whereupon Romero waived time for sentence and received two years in the penitentiary at Folsom. His attorney was B. S. Hunter, Esq.

Redlands Man Evades Law by Going to Mexico for Docking.

SAN DIEGO, June 21. -[From The Times' Resident Correspondent. | Henry Fisher, a Redlands capitalist, is passing the summer with his family at the Wade cottage, Coronado. The last Legislature having made the docking of a horse's ? tail in California a felony, Fisher drove to Tia Iuana vesterday, where the horses were placed in a corral, and their tails docked by Dr. Gillen, who accompanied Fisher.

This afternoon President Arthur G. Nason of the Humane Society went to Tia Juana to investigate. He found that although very $ near the line, no part of the corral is on American soil; hence, under the law, he could do nothing officially in the way of prosecution.

"The tails were docked close up," said Nason this evening. "It is a cruel thing, I don't care who does it, and unfortunately our law cannot reach Mr. Fisher. We shall have it amended so as to include such I cases." The Union Fertilizer Company, with nuarrelsome man in Downey named B. M. STANDARD'S TANKAGE IN KERN.

"In time of peace propare for war," has been the motto of the Standard Oil Company since its advent into the Kern River field, and in the pursuance of this policy it is now in a position to compete with all comers in the handling of its product. The company has erected seven large tanks, and is now grading for nine others. It is the intention to install sisteen new tanks as soon as possible. The average capacity is said to be 25,000 barrels, and this would give the company in the neighborhood of 1,000,000 barrels tankage capacity in Kern alone.

MIDWAY'S BOOM GROWING.
Chansler & Canfield are preparing to commence development work in the Midway field on a broad scale. They have extensive holdings, and besides constructing a water plant that will supply the greater part of the territory, within a water plant that will supply the greater part of the territory, within the next few weeks. Recent finds in the Midway field have awakened an unusual interest in o'd properties there, and there is very encouraging prospects of a great future. Strong pressure is being brought to bear on the directors of the Sunset Rallway to induce the company to extend the line on to Midway, If successful the field will start on even terms with Sunset.

MORE OIL FOR SANTA FE. MIDWAY'S BOOM GROWING.

MORE OIL FOR SANTA FE. MORE OIL FOR SANTA FE.

The Santa Fé is to further increase its consumption of fuel oil, and that soon. This is the tip that has been handed down. The proposed increase will be along the San Joaquin Valley, between Fresno and Bakersfield. The tract in this division is not ballasted, and crude oil will be used to keep the dust down. During the dry season flying dust is the cause of considerable annoyance, and if the scheme works successfully it will be used in many other sections.

REED CRUDE TO RESUME WORK

Faise kupture or Varicocele and its attendant nervous disorders, have been my special study for many years, and I have devised origin i methods of cure which are remarkably successful. The total number of cures has reached into many thousands. There is not a state in the union nor scarcely a civilized country where my cured to the state of the state in the union nor scarcely a civilized country where my cured is truly cosmopolitan in character. The reason is that my metho is of treatment are entirely different from those employed by other physicians, and the results are vastly more certain and satisfactory than those of the old-dime, wide-open surgical operation. I have my own special inventions and appliances, and employ modified natural forces and curative agencies that can always be depended upon to accomplish what I wish. I understand both the disease and its cure, and apply the curative disease. REED CRUDE TO RESUME WORK Back of the statement that the Reed Crude will soon have a rig in operation on section 22, 28, 28, is the rumor that the company has mapped out extensive development work and that more rigs will be added at an early date. From all accounts there has been some lack of harmony over the policy pursued by the company, says the Bakersfield Echo, but these differences have been adjusted of late and reports have it that the company will in the near future resume operations on its extensive holdings in the Kern River field. The company is among the pioneer operators in the river district and has two dozen or more producing wells. Back of the statement that the Reed

The well is reported to have reached a depth of almost four hundred feet, and the operators have had some trouble with water sand. sense, and it may be literally, there will be no more sea. All barriers to harmony will be removed and the separating sea will not be needed.

Two things are necessary to that renewal: 1. The renewing power must come from heaven. The old city of Jerusalem was a symbol of the city of God above and of the highest type of human society. In the Jewish nation God was trying to fix men in the holiest and highest relations to each other and the type of that social state, as well as its vital center, was the city of Jerusalem. The perfected society above, as it exists in the Godhead and between God and the angels, was the model of the earthly society. The Jerusalem above, in its relations, its ideals and its head, comes down to the earth, and sets the pattern, stirs the motives and directs the energy of God's people, till they come into both unity and union. There is no power within us to develop us into such a glorious state. It must come from heaven. It is manifested in the person of Christ's people, not singly, but collectively; not as an aggregation, but a body; not as a person unrelated, but as a collective personality related to Christ's people, not singly, but collectively; not as an aggregation of the bush and. In the East the regulation adornment of a bride is of very great moment, and the figure was a very vivid and striking one. The holy city that John knew was not wholy lost, for its successor was to be the true city of God. It is the figure not of a place, but a people.

the such and the first filled John's gaze with all the solemy and their powers and it is the figure not of a place, but a pople.

2. Government and the solement of the soleme old conditions are gone—no more of fers of salvation, no more promises of mercy. Faith becomes sight; hopes are realized; glory is won. Rejection of Christ has brought irretrievable destiny. This settlement is authoritative, for it is spoken by Him "that sat upon the throne"—the throne of administration and mercy, the throne of power, the throne of judgment. We, living on the earth now, can trust the promise of Him upon the throne to make all things new and to pronounce just judgment on the finally impenitent and unbelieving.

Mercy, however, prompts an urgent message through John to all who would live before that final day, and the message is one we can trust for it is "faithful"—worthy to be trusted, and "true," genuine. The message let us now receive for heip. It is that God's purpose is —i—and His will as good as done — It is purpose "they are to come to pass." That message says also that God is great enough to be able to become the Omega, the end, and even as He was the Alpha, the beginning. That greatness means His eternity. That message gives a tender invitation to those not yet united to Him, but already know that they can be satisfied with Him alone. The condition of entering that city of God is to desire to do so, even as one thirsts for water and the answer to that thirst is water that is living and also perennial, since it flows from a fountain in exhaustless supply. The effect of slaking that thirst is to enable us to overcome all the earthly ills, for it makes us at victorious mind. The reward of that overcoming is entrance into the inheritance which has been prepared for us as sons of God and a consummation of the relation of sons upon which we enter here in being born into the household of faith. Satisfaction, victorious consummation of the relation of sons upon which we enter here in being born into the household of faith. Satisfaction, victory, completion are thus promised. Verses $-21 speak of those who cannot enter, and they describe the city in its splendid details.

its victory over the grave. Death and sin cause all our "tears" and "mourning" and "crying" and "pain." but those "first things are passed away" when sin is destroyed and death is abolished. With God's presence on earth all ills vanish and all joys take their place.

II.

"How Men Posses the Renewed Earth." (Verses 5-7)

"And He that sitteth on the throne said. Behold, I make all things new. And He saith, Write! for these words are faithful and true. And He said unto me, They are come to pass. I am citizens of the holy city.

ceptivity. Individuals may become like Him. if they will admit Him into their hearts. Earthly cities may as truly receive that holy, heavenly city into themselves, if they open their gates to it.—[Goss.

Among the deeds of charity which, in the general opinion of oriental people, are sure of receiving an abundant recompense in the heavenly world, a prominent place is always given to those by which the poor can be supplied freely with water. This is seen in all eastern countries in the abundant provisions for the supply of water to the thirsty traveler. The fountains which are found upon all the leading roads have not been opened at the public expense. No government has ordered or paid for their construction. They are monuments of private beneficence. Whatever may be the creed of the weary traveler who quenches his thirst at the cool flowing stream, he cannot help feeling a grateful recognition of the "good deed" of the founder who, years ago, had made this thoughtful provision for the wants of the generations to come after him.—[Long.

LOOLOOS WIN CLOSE GAME.

Hale and Bowman Do Star Stunts.

Only Twelve Hits Made in the Contest.

The Statesmen Owe Their Defeut to Their Inability to Hit the Ball.

Hale and Bowman did it!
That is the whole story of yester-day's ball game between the Looloos and the Statesmen, and these two good ones could have had anything they wanted in town last night. They played ball good enough for anyone to look at, and while the other Looloos look at, and while the other Looloos were close up, they did not class with these two peaches. Hale not only pitched well, but completely paralyzed the big audience and himself by making two loud, resounding base hits that burned the grass off the ground where they struck the high places. These swats were notable because they were hard ones, but more so because they hale only makes about three cause Hale only makes about three olts in a season, and the crowd

The Statesmen experienced a great misfortune in not being able to discover the ball when Hale handed it up to them. They would watch it coming fresh out of the factory, but when they hit at it, it didn't happen to be there. When they did connect with it, Bowman or Kelly would generally gather it in, and they would to gain much, even by Charley's bungles.

He began in the first inning by dropping Devereaux's high-dy. When Bill got to first he started to sneak second and after being chased back-and forth for several minutes Reitz helped him along by sticking out his hand far enough to interfere with the ball and Bill slid to second. He got to third a moment later on McLaughlin's hit, but died there for McLaughlin, Courtney and Doyle were put out in short order. The Devereaux incident was not much in itself, but it raised the rooters up on their toes and they stayed there throughout the game.

The Looloos scored in their first on Prockhoff's pass to first, Reitz's sacrifice and Spies's fine two-bagger to the left-field fence, which brought in Broc.

The Statesmen evened matters in their third attempt. Sheehan hit to Reilly, whose bad overthrow to first let the runner around to the third station, and he scored a moment later on the throw-in after Harper filed to Bowman. They got their final run in the next inning on Courtney's double, Doyle's hit, Hanlon's base on balls and Spies's only passed ball.

The Looloos scored the second time in the fifth chance on Reitz's hit past second and Householder's double to center field. It was in this inning that the crowd went wild over Hale's first fine hit to center field, but he was doubled up a moment later on Brock-hoff's pop-fly to Harper. They tallied again in the seventh on Brockhoff's pass to first and Spies's hit to Courtney, who held the ball long enough to make a bad throw to Hanlon, Brock secring on the error. The last one came in the eighth on Hutchinson's pass and steal and Kelly's hard drive pass tharper.

It was in the ninth inning for the

It was in the ninth inning for the Statesmen that Bowman got the continuous glad hand, and it was here that Hanion perpetrated some 'dirty ball. He knocked a high fly- to Reiliy and as the ball rapidly dropped, Hanion threw his bat slong the ground close to Reiliy to make him muff the ball, but Reiliy held it, and Hanion was hissed for his trick. The next man up was Stanley, who slammed out a high foul toward the Washington-street fence. When the ball left the ball Bowman started at top speed for it and after running at racehorse speed for 300 feet through the tall weeds, with the sun in his eyes, he pulled down the ball on the run, and the crowd didn't do a thing. It was one of the finest catches ever made on the local diamond. In the sixth inning he also set the crowd on fire. After catching Stanley's high fly, he made a beautiful throw to the plate, assisting McGucken out.

The score: the rigibilities of the divine Melba, a beek individual with a rich cigar sat himself down on the hatchway, put his feet on my chair and remarked inctuously that the sea looked very swell this morning. Then uprose young Buck of New York, and from his 6 feet 2—he had his shoes on—proclaimed that was just a little too much for him, and he thought a bite was about due. And forthwith the fish there and thereabouts bit ravenously. Charlie Orr is here cultivating a proper degree of contempt for No. 3 hill. Yesterday he sent three dull 'huds into the solar-plexus of that miserable mass of trouble and then flung out a filer that is probably flying yet. Personally, I have my suspicions of a certain bird that played pranks with my own best drive of yesterday.

Tames and an account of the second						-

Alex. Greggins is figuring on pulling off a few fights down here this summer, if he can see his way out. Root and Carter will fight in San Francisco the 28th inst., and Tracey and Neill and George Gardner and Moffatt on the Fourth of July. Any two or four of these pugs would come here, if offered an inducement, and they may be brought down. UNGODLY VARIETY. AVALON, June 21.—[Special Corre-pondence of The Times.] "The sport-est links and the most ungodly golf spondence of The Times.] The sportiest links and the most ungodly golf in the wide, wide world," might well form the slogan of the Catalina Island Golf Club—that is, when due allowance has been made for the wide latitude attached to the meaning of the word "sport." Anything from iton-hunting and tuna fishing to prize fighting and coursing matches is "sport" by courtesy; and, by dint of prodigal imagining, even Catalina golf may be termed "sporty."

The chief trouble with the island course is that it plays havoc with scientific golfing and puts a premium upon mediocrity and all-round punktiness. Fine drives are constantly penalized, while comparatively poor shots that are not badly topped find capital ites for the green on an easy brassey. Short mashie, or mid-iron aproaches—the pretitiest of all shots—while not absolutely impossible, are practically useless by resson of the small-stone surfacing. In fact, the one way to play the Catalina course for fighting purposes seems to be to jerk any old drive that will clear the ever-prevailing cafon; then, if you find your ball the same day, take a flat-faced iron club, sprend your shoulders, shut your eyes, say your prayers, and set her go the sixty! By religious observance of these means, you will generally find yourself on the green, with an unlikely putt for a three—unlikely, because nobody who is is anybody everthinks of making, one on these greens.

Nevertheless, I determined to try the trick last evening, maddened by two acoreless rounds after a sickless journof and some youthful romancing. The score came out strictly according to theory—three for each hole, twenty-seven in all—and then I woke up. But I am going to try it in tournament, anyway, and these columns will tell the resulting story on Mondary morning.

We had a great voyage over. Champlon James Jeffries and a distinguished sarty were on board, and nobody was selling us a gausy yarn about tickling the risibilities of the divine Melba, a sleek individual with a rich clgar sat himself down on the hatchway, in the wide, wide world," might well American Derby.

DEATH DEALING STREET CAR.

Has Killed Two Cyclists and Knocked Down Others.

Louis Hoffman, who lives on Washington street between Figueroa and Georgia, owes his life to the prompt action of a motorman. He is now at his home nursing numerous cuts and bruises resulting from a collision with a street car on Figueroa street between Tenth and Eleventh Thursday night. Hoffman was riding south on Figueroa and attempted to ride diagonally across the tracks in front of Washington-street car No. 106. Just as he struck the first rail his wheel slipped and before he could cross the track the car was upon him. The motorman saw his danger and instead of turning off the current he promptly reversed the motor and stopped the car almost within a length of itself. Hoffman had been knocked down and he and his wheel were found on the fender of the car. He was dragged out and it was seen that he was not seriously injured although he was terribly bruised. He was conveyed to his home, where his wounds were dressed. About ten days ago Hoffman was knocked down by the same car, but was not injured. Car No. 106 of the Washington-street line has a record of collisions with wheelmen which is not equaled by that of any other car in the city. It has caused the death of two cyclists and has knocked down several others, some of whom were very seriously inprize was a silver loving cup by R. S. Baldwin.

Tom Riley of San Francisco and Ben Tremble are putting in some hard licks these days getting in shape for their mill at the Alpha Club next Tuesday. Riley is training at the club rooms at Second and Rose streets, and Tremble at Ninth and Alameda streets. Both are said to be in good condition. Tremble now weights about 162, but when he is dried out, he will be able to meet the weight all right. If Riley should by any means fall to get down to 158 and Tremble won't stand for overweight, the club people say they will give the crowd a run for its money by substituting an "unknown" from the north, who is now in training here. The go promises to be a good one.

As a preliminary Taylor and Peck will go ten rounds at 128 for a purse of $50. These boys have been trying to get next to each other for some time and something should happen. A "battle royal" may also be given. Last November the challenge cup of the Southern California Whist Association became the holding of the Los Angeles club by reason of that organization's splendid playing at the Pomonatournament. Any club in the association has the right to challenge, however, and this the Pasadena people did, the contest coming off last night. Five matches, eight boards to the match, were played by teams of four men each, Los Angeles winning four and a half matches and Pasadena one-half, by reason of a tie. The players were: Pasadena, H. R. Hertel, E. Kayser, B. O. Kendall and Mr. Beardaley; Los Angeles, Frank L. Loftus, James Foord, J. W. Hendrick and Joseph L. Merrill.

SANTA MONICA ROAD RACE.

The wheelmen are doing little at prosent except making up their predictions for the big road race to Santa Monica on the Fourth of July. It is expected that there will be between 150 and 200 entries, and all of the good riders in this vicinity will go in. The prizes will be good enough to tempt the best of them, about $700 having been contributed so far. The list includes four high-grade wheels and a silver cup, the latter given by the Columbia factory. The handicaps will not be announced for ten days.

MERE PRETENDER.

Friend and Pupil of Mme. Blavatsky

Now Lecturing in This City-Member of Swedish Nobility Earnestly Promoting Theosophical Cult.

The Countess Wachtneister, friend and pupil of Mme. Blavatsky, is delivering a course of lectures in Los Angeles, on the state of soul after death, and other occult subjects.

The Countess is not the only surviving "friend and pupil" of the founder of the Theosophical Society, but some of those who lay claim to being true disciples of the Blavatsky in these degenerative days, are said to be more pretenders. Mrs. Catherine Tingley of Point Loma spookery fame is one of the latter class, according to the statements of Countess Wachtmeister.

The Countess does not go out of her way to denounce Mrs. Tingley, but when questioned as to the legitimacy of the claims of the Point Loma priestive has been as the Point Loma priestive has been as the Proposition.

Blavatsky for six years and have been intimately associated with her work. "Col. Olcott is the president of the Theosophical Society. He was a co-founder of the society with Mme. Blavatsky, and is the living head of the Theosophical movement throughout the world. When Col. Olcott visited San Diego recently. Mrs. Tingley tried to annoy him all she could. She hired a hall and inveighed against him from the rosirum. He met her aspersions with dignified silence, and treated her only as a gentleman would a lady. "Did I visit the Point Lonn instituwith dignified shence, and treated her only as a gentleman would a lady.
"Did I visit the Point Lomn institution while at San Diego? Never! I had nothing to do with Mrs. Tingley and do not concern myself with her affairs, further than to refute her claims to being a member and leader of the Theosophical Society which she is not."

an easy, dignified delivery and is a charming conversationalist. She is a genuine member of the Swedish nobility, and calls Stockholm her home, although for years she has been a cit'son of the world.

"My husband was Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Kingdom of Nerway and Sweden at the time of his death in 1872," said the Countess. "Prior to that he was minister to the court of St. James and also to the Danish Court at Copenhagen. I mention this merely because I have seen the question saked in a newspaper in the last few days, "Who is the Countess Wachtmeister?" I am painfully aware that t'tled people sometimes come over here from Europe and conduct themselves in such a manner as to create contempt for members of the nobility. People in this country are apt to question the respectability of a titled foreigner, because so many adventures claiming title to nobility have imnosed upon them. I think however, that I am well enough known in Los Angelez, and around the world, not to be regarded with suspicion."

The Countess visited Los Angelez, and around the world, not to be regarded with suspicion."

The Countess visited Los Angelez several years ago in company with Mrs. Annie Besant. She has lectured here and in other cities of the Pacific Coast and has made a great many friends among people who are interested in occult subjects. For several months past she and her son have been staying at San Diego, where the Countess gave a series of lectures. The son is now it would be a study of spiritualism early in life, but found it unsatisfying. Eventually she came across Mme. Blavatsky's book, "Isis Unveiled." This interested her greatly and she ioined the Theosophical Society, in 1881, as an earnest seeker after truth, "and I found it." she says. For six years she lived in close companionship with Mme. Fats Lose Poor Game.

"Mrs. Tingley is not a member of the Theosophist Society and never has been," said the Countess Wachtmelster yesterday. "She was never a disciple of Mme. Blavatsky and is in no wise her successor. I know this because it lived in close companionship with Mme. Blavatsky for six years and have been of the Theosophical Society which sae is not."

The Countess Wachtmeister is a very pleasant-faced, matronly-looking lady, a little past middle age. She speaks with a slightly foreign accept, but has an easy, dignified delivery and is a charming conversationalist. AMERICAN LIFERATURE

AND AMERICAN LIFE.

L-THE PLETHORA OF BOOKS.

OF ALL the characteristics which today stamp literary conditions as different from those of other times none is more marked than the enormous multiplicity of books. "Of making many books there is no end." quoth the preacher almost 3000 years ago, when all the books which existed would hardly have furnished a small town library of the present time. What words he would have found adequate to convey his sentiments had he experienced the plethora of books which is upon the world today, it is impossible to fancy. Had he been obliged to furnish his somewhat numerous family with the new novels as they appear in twentieth-century America it is to be apprehended that he would have cried, "Vanitas, vanitatis, omnia sunt vanitas!" with more unction than

The interests of literature, art, knowiedge and morality are all at stake, and if such an organization were possible it might prove one of the greatest boons to overwhelmed readers.

The most obvious result of this condition of things is that Americans today overread. Cramming the mind with too much reading is no more healthful than crowding the stomach with too much food, and in this, as in all departments of culture, extravagance is the rule of the hour. Aesthetic digestion is very little regarded. The modern follower after intellectual or artistic enjoyment crams himself to the throat with music, sees pictures until his brain spins like a gyroscope, reads novels till they blend in his mind like the films of a composite photograph, gives himself no chance to assimilate and ends in a condition of mental dyapepsia as violent as the physical disease which made Carlyle's life a burden.

FICTION TAKEN AS A DRUG. Crowds of Americans today hear good music; it is to be feared that few en-joy it appreciatively. It is listened to by the yard, the rod, the mile, the books is the habit of reading caresily. The effort to keep up with the

Why, I never thought of that," the lady said; "but, anyway, he did it for a noble motive. Besides, I was so taken up with seeing how he was soft the other. The habit of owning taken up with seeing how he was good ing to sat the heroine that I didn't think about what he did."

"Oh, the heroine was worthy of him," the critic went on. "Does it strike you that a lady would take advantage of the illness of a man to read his private journal?"

"Oh, I didn't care about her, any way," was the frankly feminine reply." I'll only wanted to see how the story would come out."

This may sound exaggerated, but it is a genuine report of an actual talk; and at however little advantage the lady in the case appears here, she is of cultivation and of intelligence. She has fallen a victim to the plethora of books and the resulting mania of the day. She reads for the plot; indeed, hardly for that, but simply to "see how the story comes out." There are hundreds and probably thousands like her. Moral, motive, character-drawing, beauty and consistency of style, all go unnoted. Incident and a slush of sentimentality carry the book to a triumphant, if a temporary, success.

BOOKS NEITHER REGARDED NOR KEPT.

The abundance of books, whatever

KEPT.
The abundance of books, whatever disadvantages attend it in the way of disadvantages attend it in the way of overreading, superficiality, and so on, would naturally be supposed to foster the increase of private libraries. In some measure it probably does, but hardly in any wide and general sense. In the first place the public and the circulating libraries supply the ordinary reader. With these at hand no economy is easier than that of sparing nary reader. With these at hand no economy is easier than that of sparing to buy books. In the second place, the fashion of reading superficially, of skimming through a novel for the plot, or rushing through a volume to be able to claim the credit of having read it, destroys the object of owning a library. In the third place, it is so easy to get popular works in editions so cheap as not to be worth keeping, that persons of small means not infrequently buy books only to throw or to give them away after one reading. The result is that among well-to-do folks today libraries, the luxury of modern life and the cheapness of books being taken into account, are surprisingly rare.

In this fact lies a possible solution of the difficulty which besets every earnest reader. Each of us is exposed to the danger of dissipating attention on too many books, to the temptations of ready-made opinions and of superficial knowledge. A remedy may perhaps be found in the rule not to read books which one does not own.

BOOK READERS WHO DO NOT THINK.

Many readers who do not fall into this degraded condition yet depend upon the reviewers to tell them what they should think of the books which they should think of the books which they have read. They have devoured the work too rapidly to be able intelligently to judge it, and they are too much in a hurry to begin another book to take time to think over the first. Once this habit of being content with ready-made estimates is acquired, it becomes quickly as fixed as the habit of wearing a ready-made complexion. The mind loses all vitality and vigor, and becomes incapable of original judgment.

The taste for novelty, which is to the mind what oplum eating is to the body, is inevitably nourished by the habit of reading too many new books. Novelty is a pinchbeck, which to the body, is inevitably nourished by the habit of reading too many new books. Novelty is a pinchbeck, which to the body, is inevitably nourished by the habit of reading too many new books. Novelty is a pinchbeck, which to the body, is inevitably nourished by the habit of reading too many new books. Novelty is a pinchbeck, which to the body, is inevitably nourished by the habit of reading too many new books. It is not increase in value after the freshness has worn off. The indulgence of this taste results in the loss of all just appreciation of literary values. No reader can be sensitive to artistic workmanship who has accustomed himself to demand that what he reads shall appeal to his sense of novelty.

"Say, young man, I may be mistaken. Things ain't the same here as in Wyoming, but if you're a friend of Jimmie Walcott's, that settles it. I am stopping at the Vondome, and I won't offer my stock today, and we'll see, ch?"

Murdock nodded stiffly. The little watch nestled in his pocket. He could almost hear it tick.

Murdock entered the office of the syndicate manager, where he was fill, fing the nominal position of "boy" for the nominal salary of five dollars weekly, and a vast fund of experience, worth thousands per minute.

Mr. Morris rewarded him with a dignified stare from his four-foot-fromfun of the lack of Northern Pacific in that office. Murdock took the implied rebuke are very ill timed! I am getting tired of your airs."

His anger made his pen shake and a big blot dropped upon the immaculate page. He gasped and dug at it with an eraser, forgetful of the very existence of the "boy."

Murdock stood for a moment in thought. Then he threw his head back and walked slowly into the holy of holies, the private office of the "Boss."

The Boss looked up when the young man entered, then turned to his work quickly. He did not know half his employes. To him, they were simply parts of the machinery of which he was the motive power. was the motive power. The young man was out of place in his private office, but possibly some readjustment of the machinery warranted his appearance there for a moment.

"Mr. Ganmor," began the young man. He felt a little timid, notwithstanding his own wealthy connections. "What?" the financier shouted, startled at being addressed.

"You—you—I heard you were buying Northern Pacific. I want to sell you some." Murdock spoke quickly, for fear his own dignity might be hurt, if the financier got a word in.

"Want to sell me some?" repeated the Boss, in a dazed fashion, looking up from a schedule which showed that he still lacked 75,000 shares of control. Twenty-five thousand of that he could not get. Fifty thousand he might get, if he knew just who had them. He gianced at the athletic figure again.

"You are one of my employes, are you not?"

Murdock nodded. "What bid?" he said.

"What! Northern Pacific! Where did."

Murdock nodded. "What bid?" he said.

"What! Northern Pacific! Where did you get it? Explain yourself, young' man; sit down." The financier turned his powerful mind loose on the problem of getting those shares. Then he recognized the youth. It was old Murdock, son. It flashed through his mind that Murdock, senior, had some of the certificates, although he had denied it the day before.

"What bid?" repeated Murdock, junior.

Murdock shook his head. "Not enough, sir."

"A half then."

"Not enough."

"Two hundred fore immediate delivery." The financier smiled. It was a precious thing to be able to smile during business hours.

"Not enough," the young man repeated. He saw the smile. In his mind was ticking loudly the little watch. Now it had a diamond studded chain attached. A pair of blooded horses, drawing a dinky sulky, was coming down the road, too—in his mind.

"See here, boy, how much do you want? How much have you got? And where did you get it?" The big man ceased smiling. Five points already over the market price—it was no smiling matter.

"Two hundred and fifty. Don't know. Don't care to state!" Murdock said calmly with a shrewd look. The team swept into full view.

"Bought at $250, you blamed rascal. Deliver it in three hours." The financier roared as if he was on the floor of the Exchange. Murdock trembled with joy. The door opened violently, and the book-keeper rushed in. He had heard the word "rascal," and waited for nothing more. He grabbed Murdock by the collar and yelled: get out of here, you idiot! How dare you come in here. It was not my fault, Mr. Ganmor."

The Boss shouted something. The book-keeper heard it 24 in a dream. He stared as he saw the. "Boy" and the "Boss" exchange frienmy grins, then Murdock turned to him, and, straightening his collar, said: "We'll let it pass, Mr. Morris."

A tall westerner roamed the metropolis for a week in company with a well groomed young club man, and they saw New York.

Next summer, a bit of femininity, who wears the diamond studded chatelaine, and rides with Murdock behind the blooded horses, is going to Wyoming to "rough it" with her husband and Bill Helmer.
